Making a study of the Manget proposal, it is seen that 160 Methodist ministers in the North Georgia conference last year received $1,200 or less for their year's work. Of the 160 there were 45 serving in full connection, but as undergraduates or supplies, and 38 men of the group of 45 undergraduates and supplies received only $527 each for the year. The remaining 115 North Georgia Methodist ministers whose salaries were $1,200 or less actually received an average of $901 each for 1934.

Land, Property Rights

Restricted by Reich

Restricted by Reich

BERLIN, April 10.—(P)—The official reichs Gesetublatt today published a law for "the restriction of land and property rights for reasons of state defense."

The law authorized the creation of unspecified "zones of defense" in which building and other operations are forbidden except with the consent of a controling board appointed for the purpose.

Proprietors of land outside these zones may also be called upon to alter the layout of their grounds, for which they are to be adequately compensated. Non-compliance with the ordinance, which was signed by Reichsfuehrer Hitler and by General Werner Von Blomberg, minister of war, is made a punishable effectives.

Constitutional vigor and uniformity of size and color are the principal characteristics con-sidered. Other features of interest were pure white giant size rabbits, guineas and geese.

In Counterfeit Case

Three negroes arrested on charges of counterfeiting during a raid at 108 Gilmer street. Tuesday night were re-returned soon, the Chicago American said today.

Delivery of the kidnaped child to his home might be made within 24 hours, and certainly by Saturday night or Sunday, the newspaper said. Richard, mute since a throat injury at birth, vanished Thursday and was believed to have been abducted by a moron.

Barnes, who was too ill to come here for the hearing, was beaten by Rape while chained to the bars of the cell. while chained to the bars of the cell.

Against the negro's charge the defense brought evidence by records and witnesses that the negroes were chained in a standing position only five days and that after the fifth day they received regular prison camp fare.

Dr. McLaughlin testified he visited them every other day and said his diagnosis of the cause of their gangrenous feet, which he said developed after their removal from the punishment cells, was erysipelas. He added he was still of the opinion this was the cause.

Another Theory.

Guy Carswell, attorney for Little and the guards, also developed the theory that cords with which the negrees had tied pieces of blankets to their legs to prevent their chains chafing them had interfered with circulation and brought on the gangrene.

Testimony of the physicians in answer to hypothetical questions was to the effect that this was possible.

Brown was brought into the inquiry because it was from his camp, where there are ne "dark cells," that the negroes were sent to Little's camp for punishment. He, Little and the guards have all been discharged since the disclosure of the negroes' condition.

Evidence was adduced at the hearing that Elle Bogan, a negro prisoner from Lexington, died in a "dark cell" at Little's camp last August. His death was given by Dr. McLaughlin as due to a heart ailment.

Prison department regulations require a physician's examination of a prisoner before he is sent to the punishment cells, Dr. McLaughlin testified he made an examination of Bogan, but did not detect the heart, ailment, and also had examined Barnes and Shropshire and found them in normal health before their terms in the confinement cells.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

BORING WITHIN WASHINGTON, April 10.—The few really important New Deal big-wigs discovered on their desks the other day a privately printed book, elegantly prepared and bound with glazed blue leather. It contained a plan which apparently was being submitted in confidence.

Plans have been jumping out of envelopes here for years. Occasionally they have been as thick as the particles in a dust storm. This one was different. You could discern that the minute you lifted the glazed leather cover, carrying the gold embossed title: "Recovery or Radicalism."

one of President Roosevelt's most influential advisers in good standing. The only party named as author was the unidentified "committee for economic recovery," but the book was accompanied by a letter from Allie S. Freed, of New York, who said he would call

Mr. Freed is the man who arranged those dinners between businessmen and New Dealers several months ago when liaison commit-tees were established. He speaks generally as a friend and author-

This is why some gasped when they noted that his plan coun-seled Mr. Roosevelt to change the middle-of-the-road course at once: Fight the radicals (naming Townsend, Long, Coughlin and Upton Sinclair); promote the durable goods industries; amend the securities act; discount real estate mortgages; in short, save the country from an inevitable radical crisis by a swing to the right.

ADVICE Obviously the book was prepared on the assumption that its deductions would not be publicly circulated, because it speaks more boldly than friends of the New do. It says, for instance, that "we must make real headway toward Father Coughlin as a demagog who is able to delude 5,000,000 people; Dr. Townsend as an impractical dreamer; Upton Sinclair as a dangerous radical, and Huey Long as the Hitler of Louisiana's return to the dark ages.

"There is only one real cure for this type of radicalism," the k continues. "It lies solely in economic recovery.
"We should put full steam toward recovery and relegate everybook continues. thing else to a position of secondary importance. Thinking people should be made to realize that the nation is facing a very serious crisis and that our hope lies in the leadership of Franklin D.

"If an individual like Townsend must be taken seriously at this time anything is possible a year from today if economic recovery shall not have been obtained."

Election charts based on returns of 1928 and 1932 are carried in the book to prove that the radicals may defeat the president and cause the election of a minority republican administration.

PROGRAM To thwart this, the first phase of the program advises

1. "Economic recovery must be made the paramount issue . . . "A definite program of counter-action should be studied and planned mainly by men outside the government. This must include leaders from all walks of life.

"Newspaper editors and radio broadcasting stations should be educated in order that they may understand the damage threatened by demagogs. . . . We should be careful not to interfere with free speech. . . . We should, however, prevent the quotation of statistics which are without proper basis, and of wilful misstatements

"Important members of both liberal and conservative groups should be brought to the realization that, while they debate their own beliefs, unprincipled radicals are conspiring to destroy the PLAN The economic plan accompanying the program is detailed and extensive. There are 50 pages of charts (the book has 96 pages in all) showing how "eight million people can be re-embeginning June 1 at a rate of one million a month.

Most of the unemployment is in durable goods and the service ustries. The deferred demand for products of each of these industries is carefully calculated, and totals $49,275,000,000.

The deferred demand as estimated for several of the major in-dustries is: Autos (deficiency for 3 years) $4,000,000,000; home building (10 years) $20,000,000,000; industrial plant obsolescence (5 years) $5,000,000,000; electrical energy (10 years) $4,500,000,-000; electrical equipment (5 years) $2,500,000,000; grade crossings, highways, municipal sewage $6,400,000,000. Apparently, this deferred demand was calculated by estimating what the consumers have not bought since 1930, as based on what they were buying before.

CORRECTIONS The book wants the president to remove the "excessive liability" feature of the Securities Exchange Act. It holds that the law needs other minor corrections which are holding back new financing. It counsels improved facili-ties for instalment sales, opening of the mortgage markets on a long term base, reorganization of the real estate mortgage structure.

We strongly recommend that the business managers of the nation who are now temporarily in the discard, in the consideration of the basic problems of recovery, be drafted in this war for re-

It Is Shameful To Bite in the Clinches---Unless You Are Being Licked

-By Robert Quillen-The oriental is a realist. He may fool others, but he never fools himself. If he decides to do wrong for the sake of profit or pleasure, he does it openly and blandly, without shame.

If an American wishes to do the same wrong, he first convinces himself that it is right, or finds a way to do it in the name of righteousness.

When the Japanese brazenly disregard treaties and private contracts, Americans are shocked and outraged—as they were when Russia and Europe violated their pledges and refused to pay their debts.

The American's creed demands a square deal. If a promise is made, it must be kept. A mere I. O. U. is a sacred bond. If a man guesses wrong, he must keep his contract if it breaks him. He must be a good loser and take his bitter medicine like a man and a sportsman. That is the national creed of sport and business and the foundation

How much of it is real and how much is delusion? The gold clause was a contract as binding as plain words could make it. But the turn of events had given it a new value that threat-ened to impose intolerable hardship, and the supreme court did the expedient thing and declared it void. When the depression began, millions of people were in debt. They had borrowed money and spent it. And they had promised to return the money or give up property pledged as security.

Yet those who kept their pledges were regarded as martyrs and laws were passed to save the others from ruin. If a national emergency justified the annulment of these contracts,

Adolph Ochs NEW YORK, N. A. Just Boss Was boss all right, as anyone who was really curious could find out, but in several years around the office of the New York Times, I never heard of anyone's having raised the question. On the contrary, the Times people seemed glad that he was their boss and to regard him as the agent of a just and generous God in his little precinct of the world. There was a feeling that in the improbable event of a man's receiving a dirty deal through the malice of some little boss or a turn of office politics the wrong would be scrupulously adjusted on an appeal to Adolph Ochs. For this very reason it was seldom necessary to take such an appeal.

The character of the Old Man, or

The character of the Old Man, or the Old Gentleman, as they preferred to call him, permeated the shop and a man had a serene feeling that his job was safe unless he got drunk on a story, fell down on too many assignments, faked or threw a pig at the night city editor. There was an historic scandal in the Times office quite a few years ago. A reporter got mad at the night city editor and, snatching up a big of lead which was holding down a batch of copy, threw a duster dead at him. The night city editor contracted his neck into his collar in the nick of time and the pig took a gouge of plaster out of the wall. The reporter was fired abruptly and the principle was firmly established that anyone throwing any pig or pigs at the night city editor would be subject to instant dismissal. It never happened again.

But, in the Times office they never character of the Old Man, or sal. It never happened again.

But, in the Times office they never went in for over-loading and consequently escaped those periodic massacres which are the constant terror of so many other shops. Neither did they ever call in the professional axeman who hires out as executioner to other kind-hearted publishers around the country who are too merciful to fire old hands themselves. At the Times office the staff was kept in Johnson would resign to become a literary figure, a Dick Oulahan would die after long and distinguished serv-ice, a few would begin to burn out and retire on pensions and a few would be fired for cause. In the case of a competent newspaper hand joining the Times, it was comparable to entering the police force. If he attended to business he could look forward to retirement and, in the mean-

Protected Moreover, a man who Employes made the grade on the Times could hang up his hat and sit down his hat and sit down to a typewriter in any newspaper shop in the country. When they cov-ered a story on the Times they sprad-dled all over it. They never sent a reporter out to watch a man dig a hole but that he got two leg-men to help him, and a fire in a trash-can called for a battalion of Times re-porters in their field kit of spats and sticks and with their gloves turn-ed down at the cuffs.

In the Times office there was an air which was somewhat stuffy to a man of the rough-and-tumble school. man of the rough-and-tumble school. They did have an office cat but they didn't throw papers on the floor or howl "Bo-o-oy!" or kick over the furniture when a flash came in. And, as startling as the silence of the office, was the enormous size of the staff. The place looked like the business office of Sears-Roebuck. The telegraph desk alone employed as many men as you might find in a whole newspaper shop in many a major league city.

Undoubtedly, when the pinch came, Mr. Ochs could have saved himself considerable money by lopping off the Johnny-come-latelies, but if he had done that he wouldn't have been the Adolph Ochs of whom I write. Instead, he stood off the pressure himself for a period of some years and self for a period of some years and, so far as I know, made only one cut in wages on the editorial side.

Personally, he seemed to years he would sometimes come into the office after the theater, climb the iron stairs and lean over the tables in his white vest to discuss things with some of his old hands from Chattanooga. Then he would go away with ink or grease all over his vest. He didn't like to see men with their feet on the desks in the editrial room, but he wasn't bossy about it. He once asked a reporter if he would mind not to put his feet up because, he said, it didn't look nice. In other shops it is considered unwise to put one's feet up because it makes a man look as though he had little to do and, therefore, unnecessary.

I would have thought them queer.

But here I am, and no one is entitled to more credit for it than my attorney and my banker. They advised me to come to Hollywood at a time when things didn't look too rosy time when things didn't look too rosy is deed me to come to New York and play the part.

Mr. Ochs didn't mind card games in the shop, either, although once they had to reduce the limit from a dollar, had to reduce the limit from a dollar, stud, to a quarter, because one man lost a week's salary and his wife went down and complained. The city editor rather favored a mild game, however, because it tended to keep a lot of good men around after hours. It was a good thing to know they were there in case of emergency. In Frank Munsey's shop a man could be fired for smoking.

I first saw Mr. Ochs in Mr. Ed Bradley's gambling house in Palm Peach one night during the goofy era of prosperity. He was just looking around and had paused to take a short, awe-struck peek at another it inserted in every new agreement.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—(AP)— The text of President Roosevelt's proclamation increasing the price of newly mined domestic silver from 64 1-2 to 71 cents an ounce follows:

Whereas, by proclamation of the twenty-first day of December, 1933, as modified by proclamation of the ninth day of August, 1934, the United States coinage mints are directed to receive for coinage and addition to the monetary stocks of the United States silver mined subsequent to December 21, 1933, from natural deposits in the United States or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof; and whereas, such proclamation as so modified is subject to revocation or further modification as the interest of the United States may seem to require.

I, Franklin D. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy issued the to get a reduction in the $100 per month alimony which was awarded his former wife in superior court. He was in arrears $2,800 and the judge said he would have to pay $1,000 to clear himself of the contempt order.

Fitzwater's attorney raised the money but the former Mrs. Fitzwater, now Mrs. Eva Hanna, of a Parkway drive address, did not receive it. It was paid to the clerk of the court for further order because it was attached Wednesday in municipal court by the American Bonding Company of Balti-more, which claims Mrs. Hanna owes it $200. This debt resulted from a bond the company had to pay for Mrs. Hanna in a former court tangle over the alimony, it was said.

SHERIFFS ASKED TO HALT SELLING OF INFERIOR FRUIT

Governor Talmadge Wednesday called upon the sheriffs in Georgia to break up an alleged practice of some persons selling pecans, peaches and other products shortweight and defective along the state highways.

The governor took action upon receiving a complaint of Charles P. Castello, of Harvard, Mass., that he had bought pecans along a Georgia highway and when he got home he found that the packages were about half the weight represented and the nuts old, stale and culls.

"If you have a two-pound package, let it be two pounds, and don't sell any rotten pecans. It will advertise Georgia unfavorably," the governor said.

Three-Fold Program.

Previously, however, it had been made known that a three-fold program was to be taken up with the president.

First, elimination of the agricultural processing taxes in keeping with the George amendment to the work-relief bill permitting their absorption by the government out of the gigantic relief funds.

Second, continuation of the past policy of making

Since the senate adopted his original amendment giving the president authority, in his discretion, to remove the taxes, a widespread movement, extending not only throughout the south, but in textile areas in New England as well, a concerted movement has developed to this end.

Textile manufacturers of the country claim that relief from the burdensome taxes will enable them to proceed with normal production operations, employing additional workers and opening the way for lower prices which will give rise to larger consumer demands.

As evidence of the growing movement now taking form behind the George processing tax elimination proposal, it was learned here today that governors of all the New Eng-Since the senate adopted his original

Water a study of the program the growers representing Ware, Appling, Atkinson, Bacon, Berrien, Brantley, bring a rise in some commodities. Actually the treasury is merely following up a rise in the world silver market which it set in motion itself.

In the words of Wall Street, it is forcing up the price itself.

The move is not directly inflation—asked that "the present ary, but according to experts it has inflation potentialities. SOUTHERN SENATORS OPPOSE SACRIFICE OF U. S. COTTON WASHINGTON, April 10.—(P)—While the congressional textile bloc laid plans for a vigorous counterattack, following the administration's avowal that not a penny of the four billion works relief bill would go to growers as benefits, Senator Smith, of the agricultural committee, announced that the Dixie contingent is opposed to the sale of government cotton at present. Uncle Sam is said to control 5,000,000 of the 9,000,000 bales outside the government and the market upon which they depend is quoted at around 11 cents a pound?" he asked.

"There is no reason for the government to unload its cotton."

Textile mills have complained that the right grades and staples are not now available on the market.

While these developments were moving, plans for the senate agricultural committee's investigation of the recent drop in price below the 12-cent peg went silently forward. Smith, who obtained a $10,000 authorization for the inquiry, said he probably would announce tomorrow the names of two investigators and an attorney the committee intends to retain.

Under the Bankhead act bonds would be issued to help check the "increase of tenancy" on farms by making loans to finance small individual farms and farm homes.

Senators in Accord.

Senators Harrison and Bilbo, of Mississippi, Bankhead and Smith met in the latter's office to discuss the plea of textile nills that some of the government option cotton be made available to them.

Smith said the group agreed to advise Oscar Johnston, head of the cotton pool, not to sell "one bale" of the option cotton until the market of the lint is grown by tenants and dustry to eliminate this crucifying tax."

Baylies pointed out that the George amendment to the works bill gave the president ample authority to substitute from the $4,800,000,000 relief tuns, money to defray the cotton tax benefits, and continued:

"If some action is not accorded relieving the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly, the processing the industry of this burden, and accorded quickly.

A successor to Dr. Sanford as president of the university will not be named until the next meeting of the board, scheduled for early in May.

Announcement of the selection of the new chancellor was made by Chairman Marion Smith, of the board of regents. Mr. Smith said that the selection was unanimous and that no other name was presented to the board.

Debt Board To Be Named. At its session Wednesday the board also voted to name a committee to work out a plan with Governor Talmadge for payment of the university system's indebtedness of about $650,000. It is understood that the governor agreed to pay half of the sum if the regents pay the balance out of their regular appropriation. The funds to be provided by the governor are to come from an unannounced source.

My wife and I believe in teaching our children bridge at an early age, as the best training for concentration and sportsmanship.

To help them learn contract, I have invented a new game which I recommend to parents as a preliminary step for the intellectual complexities of bridge. We deal out 52 cards, turning the last one to indicate trump. All four hands are exposed, each player leads in turn, the highest card wins the trick and any player may trump if unable to follow suit. It is a wonderful way to learn honortricks and suit establishment. Teaching them respect for an understanding of such intellectual games as chees.

It was Christmas Day, 1910. Santa Claus had just left gifts for the family of Bryan Grant when there was another knock

It was the stork, bringing Bryan M. Grant Jr.

Yesterday there was a knock at the door and Bryan M. Grant Jr. received a wire from the Davis cup committee saying he had been appointed to the United States cup team-the highest honor in tennis-and would he please report to Mexico City on May 3 for practice and the first round in the challenge

It's the story I've been wanting to write for years because opportunity hasn't exactly bruised its knuckles rapping for the Grant boy. Instead he has bruised his head for years bucking against the tennis tradition which said that a young fellow just five feet and four inches tall could never play on the cup team.

So he became one of those little bulldogs one encounters in sport. In the beginning even his parents didn't think he had enough ability. The older brother received the most coaching. Bryan Grant fought his way from the start. He became one of those fighters who come to grips and hang on fighting... making the big fellows look bad... upsetting the idea that a good big man can always beat a good little man... he became one of those picturesque characters of sport . . . the sort who make newspaper copy . . . the sort who come snarling back

You may have the colorless performers even though their skill is great . . . they lack something . . . most of them crack when the pressure is hardest . . . you may have the lot of them who don't make stories . . . they don't really belong.

Look down the list—Bobby Jones—Hagen—Sarazen-Ruth-Dempsey-Tilden-the winners-the ones the crowd follow. And Grant belongs to that group because he has the heart for it and the dramatic instinct to beat the other man-

THE START OF THE STORY.

The start of the story, of course, is December 25, 1910. But the start of the tennis story was a few years later. Bryan M. Grant Sr. was a tennis player himself, doubles champion of Georgia and of the south, for a number of years, with Nat Thornton as partner.

There was something rather remarkable about them. They were champions in 1907 and 1908. And then came back 10 years later to win again.

And so, of course, the father wanted his two sons to be tennis players and he built one of those family courts in the back yard.

And it was on that family court, where his father and mother and elder brother played, that Bryan M. Grant first learned the game.

There was early schooling at Boys' High . . . three years at the University of North Carolina, where he was No. 1 on There was his first major title, the southern, in 1927.

There was his first national title in 1930 when he won the national clay courts championship The titles began to come. He began to beat the big games in tennis. They began to avoid him as much as possible on

Last year was a good year. This year he began even better.

And now comes the appointment to the Davis sup. The buildog hung on, growling, until he got what he was after. The buildogs of the world usually do.

A GREAT PERFORMER.

He's great to see in action. He's a blooming bulldog and a marathon runner all rolled

He races . . . he slides . . . he grimaces . . . he swears peals to the gods to witness the fact there is no justice .. he grits his teeth ... he goes after the ball ... he keeps racing on . . . running . . . leaping . . . panting . . . seemingly on the point of falling in complete exhaustion . . . but he gets the ball.

Opponents have told me he drives them to the point of desperation. He keeps getting the ball back. No matter where they put it he gets it back. He is indefatigable. He is the greatest retriever in the game.

He thumbs a figurative nose at nature which did not give him height and power to go from the base line to the net and volley and thunder with the boys. He is a sprite, a human cricket of a man who leaps for the ball . . seems about to miss it . . . gets it back . . . but, see, the opponent has driven it to the opposite corner . . . no matter . . . there is Grant running again, sliding on the clay . . . and he gets the ball back.

He is the bird dog of tennis—this Grant—this retriever who gets the ball back—back-back-back—until the opponent goes off into a condition commonly known as nuts and begins to slam the ball out of bounds, into the net-just as if he were saying, "All right, it will cost me a point but try to retrieve

And so he goes to the Davis cup team.

Boosts Grant's Game Better Volleying Has Made a Great Difference

Change to Offensive

Too, Nat Thornton Says. By Jack Troy.

A pal of Bryan Grant's cradle days was Nat Thornton, who used to campaign up and down the land of cotton with Grant's daddy, B. M. Sr., vinning doubles championships.

And a pal of all the days since Nat Thornton has remained. Next to Bryan, Sr., Bitsy has not had a more loyal follower.

It was yesterday out at the Biltmore Tennis Club as dusk was settling and the last doubles match was drawing to the inevitable end, that Nat Thornton sat back on his bleacher seat and declared, "Is that so? Little Bryan is on the Davis cup team at last?" He was silent for a time and nothing else was said. He probably was this about the days when he and Big Bryan composed one of the finest doubles teams the south ever saw and of the later days when Little Bryan toddled along and demanded a resource of a could play to demanded a racquet so he could play, too.

And there were the days when they all used to play together, the system being that the better players practiced on the No. 1 court, the next best on No. 2 court and so on. And Little Bryan gritted his teeth and advanced from one court to the other until he was able to play on the No. 1 court with Big Bryan and Nat.

THE DIFFERENCE

"It's his change from defensive to offensive tactics. Before he was strictly defensive, always depending on the other fellow to miss. Now he is changed. He wades in and puts his shots away. He isn't afraid of the net any more. And why should he be? Little Bill Johnston, one of the greatest little players that ever lived, always came to the net. And he did not have the legs that Bryan has.

"Another thing, Bryan's volleying has improved remarkably. That's the point I always tried to drive home to him. 'Improve on your volleying,' I'd tell Bryan, 'and you will have everything. Nobody will beat you.

25 PER CENT BETTER. "And he has improved wonderfully. He is 25 per cent better than he was four years ago. And it's all because he has a real volley now and he's playing offensively instead of defensively.

His backhand always has been good "There's the matter of his tem-perament. That has improved, too. He doesn't worry and fight with the umpire or talk to himself any more. I don't know where he ever got that because Big Bryan never fussed or worried a bit. "I am delighted that Little Bryan a finally been given recognition. He am delighted that Little Bryan as finally been given recogntion. He eserves it. A chance was all he ever sked. I'm sure he will make good."

Not pulled out his watch. He could barely see the face, it was that dark. "My goodness," he said, "I had no idea it was this late, I am everque on an engrapment." I am overdue on an engagement."
So Nat Thornton walked away and

So Nat Thornton walked away and in the dusk one could easily see a wide grin on his face.

Along with Grant, who holds the national clay court title, Frank X. Shields, of New York, America's third ranking player; Gene Mako and Donald Budge, the young California doubles aces, have been invited to play against China.

The matches will be played in Mexico Cuba matches. The United States is figured as an easy victor.

Coach Vernon "Catfish" Smith used Lafty Nichols, Julius Bishop and Frank Johnson on the mound for Georgia. These three pitchers yielded only seven hits but the Tigers were hitting the ball when hits were needed.

And still it isn't honor enough—because there is no office which would be fine enough for Dr. Steadman Vincent Sanford.

They have given him all these honors, but he still belongs to the ewspapermen who traveled with him for years to many, many football triumphs when he was athletic director, and the best, it may be added, that southern athletics ever saw.

It was the late Dr. William Dudley, ? of Vanderbilt University, who formed of Vanderbilt University, who formed the first athletic association in the south, the great cumbersome S. I.

of a purely southern group and h formed the old Southern conference at a historic meeting at Jacksonville.

And just three years ago he again led the move which formed th Southeastern conference, a closer-knit organization of 13 leading southern universities for the purpose of promoting better athletic relations and methods. letic relations and methods.

No man in the south has done as much as he for the building up of southern athletics. And it is no mere paying of tribute to say that he has done more for the promoting of rules which made for cleaner and higher athletic methods because the Southeastern conference rules which abolished the playing of freshmen, which prevented transfers of athletes in the south even after a one-year residence

And it was he who came out for honesty and the abolishment of hypocricy by presenting and passing the athletic scholarship rule which permitted and put in the records, legitimate athletic scholarships,

He is a great character and a greater educator. There are many, many men in Georgia who owe their inspiration and success in life to this man who encouraged them and gave them their inspiration at the university at Athens. There are many more whom he taught in the public schools before he went to the university who owe him a great gift. There is no telling

TRAVELING COMPANIONS. Dr. Sanford and I are old traveling companions. We used to sit far into the night on the rolling Pullmans talking of this game and that. And we have known victory and defeat and learned to treat each imposter just the same. And so this is in the nature of a personal salute to the man who has been made chancellor of the university

He has given that system all his life and I suspect he will give it that, too, because he will go on working for the young men and women of the state until he is called to a higher work and the great Chancellor of them all shall tell him "Well done."

Grant is the smallest player ever to gain Davis cup recognition. He is five feet four inches in height and weighs 120 pounds. He is 25 years old.

Little Bill Johnston, Davis cup star for many years, was a trifle taller and huskier than Grant, although old-timers maintain his legs are not as strong as the Grant legs. Little Bill was the first midget player to prove that lack of height is no barrier at the net. Grant is the second. He has changed his tactics, playing an offensive game rather than a defensive one. He now wades in and puts shots away where before he kept the ball in play, wore down the other fellow's patience and forced him into errors.

Guy Sturdy "Chooses" Crackers This Year

"Best Looking Atlanta Ball Club I Can Recall," Declares Oriole Boss, Ex-Baron.

By Jimmy Jones.

Guy Sturdy, who was one of the best first basemen around these parts a few years back, knows whereof he speaks when he is speaking of the Southern league.

And when Guy, without the slightest provocation, came out flatly yesterday and said the Crackers were a cinch to finish somewhere as one of the first three teams in this year's race, and even more of a cinch to land in the Shaughnessey play-off, the boys began to prick up their ears.

Mr. Sturdy, who had become rather unsturdy at intervals during the game over the base umpiring of a Cracker pitcher, had cooled off by this time and was speaking quite calmly and analytically.

"This is the best looking Atlanta ball club that I can remember see-ng," declared the Oriole manager, who played first base for Birmingham and New Orleans in this league and who has seen enough of the majors and minors to know a ball club when he sees one. he sees one.

"Whoever says this ball club isn't the ball club to beat in the Southern race this year is plumb crazy," added Sturdy, who did such a good jeb of managing himself after taking over the Baltimore club last year on July 4, that he was given the position on very much the same merits that Eddie Moore was given the Atlanta job.

LIPSCOMB BRILLIANT.

Lipscomb, playing despite a yery bad leg, was downright brilliant afield, figuring in two of the three rapid-fire double plays that the Crackers pulled off, and collecting three hits—one a two-bagger. Lipscomb handled 11 chances at second with only one error, which should be a tip-off on what he can do when he gets over a painful Charley horse which has had him down ever since the club returned from Florida.

That's the best looking pair of rookies the Crackers have had in a long time," a long-suffering fan said after the game as he laid a detaining hand on the writer, scurrying down the ramp-way. And if the fans like them, that much is in their favor.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn,, April 10 .-

Leave it to that stocky maestro of the Cracker staff, Harry Kelley, to be first in everything.

First in the hearts of the fans and last year first in the won and lost column of the league, the gentleman farmer from Arkansas yesterday became the first Cracker pitcher to go the route as his teammates slugged two Baltimore pitchers viciously for 13 hits and an 8-2 victory to square the series at one-all.

Sir Harry not only worked nine innings, but he worked with midsummer ease and finished under wraps, so to speak, giving the Orioles but six hits, two of which came in the ninth inning when Harry was just laying them in there to let the Orloles hit them on the schnozzola if they could.

Those fascinating colors caught the eye. Such things as buttercup yellow, apple green and blossom pink. Field flowers add the influence of spring in the frocks, either appliqued or worn in saucy bunches in corsage effect.

There is a decided tendency toward the tailored effect in evening dresses which is achieved by the shirtwalst front. But there is still the beauty and charm in the capes and frills and the new crepes with the fullness effect in front. That last note is very good and very new. There is a red and white dotted swiss which caught every eye. Long, billowy and the very latest expression of beauty and charm.

This two-piece cape dress, featured at Wellborn's, is the latest mode for street and sport wear. The coin-dotted cape is lined with the same shade as the dress and adds a military note to the ensemble. The buckle trim matches the cape and removal of the latter reveals a smart plain street dress, also suitable for sports.

Stars in Chic Gowns. PARIS, April 10.—(P)—Smart women can "thank their lucky stars" for some of their chic this spring. Schiaparelli has launched a new crepe stamped in black with the pattern of the great bear constellation and used it to design what she calls "lucky dresses." Other designers are showing blouses of white madras stamped in black stars, others use mother of pearl stars as buttons on dark frocks and still others show straw belts splashed with little gold moons and stars.

Billowy Outer Garments Especially Flattering to Taller Women.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The most alluring clothes in the Easter parade this year will swing in the crisp spring breeze—literally—because capes are very much in the fashion picture and in to stay. They seem to be more intriguing than ever.

It is a style axiom as far as tall women are concerned that there's nothing more flattering than a cape. Short women on the other hand, are apt to look too squat in one. However, they can pick themes that will be as becoming to their stature as the out and out billowy types are to their taller sisters.

There are separate capes in various lengths to take the place of a spring coat, shorter ones to slip on in casnal fashion over silk or woolen street frocks and, of course, the usual wide and handsome selection of taffeta, velvet, net, moire, tulle and organdy capelets for formal occasions. When you pack your long, fur-trimmed winter evening wrap in moth balls, get a taffeta or velvet cape to take its place.

One-plece dresses with matching capes, either attached or separate, have an air of suave sophistication about them. They have the neatness of a tailleur plus the charm of dressmaker clothes which are essentially feminine.

Suit, Ensemble and Silhouette Rule Fashion Scene for Spring

PARIS, April 10 .- Out of the ava- | Whatever your personality, figure,

PARIS, April 10.—Out of the avalanche of frills, tucking, gauging, embroidering and seaming that overwhelmed the fashion world in the spring collections, there emerge three basic principles, which, say the oracles, will rule the style scene this spring.

The suit—tailorsd, semi-tailored, dressmaker or the newcomer cocktail suit—obviously takes first place as the staple garment of our wardrobe.

Whatever your personality, figure, tastes and avocation, there is somewhere the exact model to suit you, and with it, the very comforting thought that it is stylish.

You may vote for the slightly circular, the straight, the corselet or the pleated skirt yet be correctly modish. Your jacket may swing from the shoulders, be fitted and seamed like the old-time jackets, assume the shape of a jaunty little bolero barely reaching to the hips, or button down the front and boasting of two breast and Second, for the woman who wishes to discard the suit theme in her more formal dress, the "ensemble" idea of-fers choice. Dress of modernistic fers choice. Dress of modernistic print and long 7-8 or 3-4 coat belted or falling in straight folds in bright colors or in black. Or if plain colors are preferred the new porcelain blues, pinks, greens and infinitely varied grays are there for your choosing. Usually the coat is one or two shades darker.

Third, for evening, the wide and the streamline silhouette seem to be equally favored by the creators. Tulle and lace with stiff satins, taffetas and heavy crepes fashion the romantic wide-skirted, wasp-waisted robes de style 1935. Strangely enough, much the same fabrics are used for the slim, modernistic models, but somehow they take on a different look according to their treatment.

India, China and Persia seem to have furnished many of the themes which have inspired the advance guard of the mode.

Schiaparelli's collection is one where ideas just topple over one another and one after another. She is starkly modern in her day.

"AFTER 8" DRESSES IN WIDE SELECTION FROM LAWRENCE'S

For allure during the informality of Easter evenings, Lawrences presents a wide selection of dresses for "after eight." In addition, the two-inone effect is a best seller now. Worn with a cape it gives an effective swagger appearance. Removal of the cape finds the wearer smartly attired in a plain but attractive street dress, suitable for all informal spring or summer occasions.

Pastels are leading with navy cruising close behind. All models that may be tub-washed find high favor for all.

It's easy to watch your step in shoes from Burt's. The variety that may be obtained from either of the two Whitehall street stores is suitable to the most fastidious. The patterns and colors in Palm Beach fabric offer an attractive and admirable range for creation of all manner of styles. Right now the buckskins and kids in white and grain are fashion's latest mode. The lines and swirl present a completness of the wardrobe for any type of dress and correspond to various spring and color combinations. Beige and gray are the most popular now and many may be seen in the Easter parade as they blend in synchronizing effect with Easter easembles. The heels are more military and built up, with the boulevard and spectator very good.

The zipper oxfords are very good for sports which always call for color combinations which this year are brown and white and blue and white, these combinations being much more popular than solid.

The low heel sandal for cocktails and for evening wear are very good in the toeless and hecless style. They come in all shades of linen and match the gay dresses so effective for spring evenings.

Former Georgian Arrives Friday Mr., Mrs. Simmons Miss Martin Weds Mr. Counts From South America To Visit Here Celebrate Anniversary

By Sally Forth.

NO VISITOR to our city creates more interest than Mrs. James Mayes, the former Andrina McDaniel, of Augusta. Since her marriage two years ago to Jim Mayes this attractive Georgian has resided in Maracaibo, Venezuelh, South America. With her father, A. H. McDaniel, whom she is visiting in Augusta, she will arrive Friday to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Stanley Hastings, in Decatur. They will be joined on Saturday by another sister, Mrs. Frances McDaniel Nowell, who makes her home in Chicago. A happy reunion it will be for this trio of sisters and their father, who is one of Augusta's leading citizens.

This is Andrina's first trip to Georgia since she left for South America, where Mr. Mayes is officially connected with a large American firm. No doubt but that she will be bombarded with questions about her life and customs of those who reside in the tropical land.

Sally hears that the visitor's gar-den in Maracaibo is proving an interesting subject with her group of flower-minded friends. Particularly fascinating is An-drina's description of the seven varieties of orchids which bloom in her South American garden. Those of us who find it difficult to make things grow in our red soil were amazed to learn that the former Georgian can produce a beautiful rosebud from a small cutting placed in the ground just six weeks before. However, the gardeners in that country have their troubles, too. According to Andrina, their pet fear is the iguana, a form of the lizard, who erawls into the flower beds and eats the roots of the plants.

There is no reason why opposites should not attract each other, yet su-tistics show that, as far as marriage is concerned, they do not. Studies of hundreds of marriages reveal the fact that people usually marry their own type rather than the opposite type. (Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution.)

HISTORY'S FASHION PARADE.

IV.—In the Middle Ages.

Among the quaint pictures saved from the time of the Middle Ages is one of a German count and his wife. Both wear long robes, and it is interesting to notice that the robe of the count is just about as long as that of the countess.

underwear. Putting on a suit of armor was a long, hard task.

Women of the Middle Ages wore such long dresses that it was hard, if not impossible, to see their feet. Even bare-footed women who labored on farms were in the custom of wearing dresses which touched, or almost touched, the ground.

Now and then a fine lady wore a dress which trailed five or six feet behind her. She might be followed by a maid who held up her skirt to keep it from getting soiled or stepped on!

The hats and bonnets of women were of many shapes and sizes during the Middle Ages. The most famous headdress was the steeple-hat. This was a kind of cone which rose above the head to a height of from one to three feet. Sometimes it was worn at such a slant that it would have fallen off if it had not been fastened firmly to the head. In many cases there was a piece of gauze which hung from the point of the steeple-hat and trailed to the ground.

18 An Tab (4) . By FRANK MacMILLEN. NEW YORK, April 10 .- (A)-Light selling flurries at the beginning and close of the session gave the stock list an irregular appearance today, although during most of the trading period prices were about even.

A few groups, including the department store stocks, oils, alcohols and tobaccos resisted the light pressure at the close, but in other sections minus signs generally predomi-

Bonds strung along with stocks. Early firmness in some of the second grade rails was largely lost at the finish and the general appearance of the loan market was uneven. United States governments were predominantly a little higher, but a few soft spots were in evidence. Wheat, a largered

Wheat, a laggard yesterday when corn and other staples were advancing, made up for its hesitancy today with a lift of 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 cents bushel and core. bushel and corn was again higher advances of 3-8 to 1 cent. Cot-n was 15 to 30 cents a bale lower. Store Stocks Bought.

Store Stocks Bought.

Some Wall Street brokerage houses reported that their customers had been buying department store stocks on the assumption that a major part of the $4.850,000,000 of work relief funds would eventually find its way into retail trade channels. The lower priced preferreds in the store group were the chief beneficiaries of the buying movement. buying movement.

In the oils Amerada was a leder, with a gain of 2 1-4 points at 56 3-4 and most others improved Activity in the stock market was moderately stepped up, with turnover at 990,000 shares. The Associated Press average for of a point at 37.8.

Silver retained its place in the financial spotlight with a continuation of its rise of the last fortnight. Bar metal was 1 1-8 cents higher at 64 1-8 cents an ounce, the best level since 1926. Silver shares, however, were little affected. United States Smelting, which had a sharp advance in Tuesday's dealings, today reacted more than a point at 103 1-2.

Dividend Out.

Light and power shares were generally a little lower.

News from the steel business was mixed. Iron Age estimated current production 1 percentage point lower at 46 per cent of capacity, but at the same time said that "aggregate business volume is holding up much better than expected." The United States Steel Corporation reported an 84,919-ton gain in shipments of finished steel in March as compared with February. The March figure was 668,056 tons.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—Some moderate technical trading correction may be in order. Nevertheless buying may be resumed refore the end of the week in the anticipation of a possible rail decision Monday.

DOBBS & CO.—The stock market gave a satisfactory performance Monday and is probably in a fairly good position to respond to any favorable news which may be released.

Feleased.

BEER & CO.—The sharp advances recorded Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning have undoubtedly weakened the technical position of the average issue.

Even if the current advance is to carry through, it is not logical to look for some further consolidation.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE_The immediate future of the market is likely to turn on the results of the conference between the president and southern senators now under way.

RUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—It still looks like a trading market.

BEER & CO.—Prices will likely ease some further but we favor buying on dips.

COUNTS & CO.—We expect irregularity until political questions such as loan, processing tax. AAA liceusing and export bountles are settled.

GRAIN OPINIONS.
FENNER & BEANE—We believe wheat is ceading for higher levels and that both tomestic and foreign developments will be averable. COURTS & CO.—The government report is somewhat under average expectations and together with currently firm foreign prices should sustain the advance.

NEW YORK, April 10.-(A)-Con flicting price trends prevailed on the curb market today. A number of specialties advanced in light dealings while quotation changes among alcohols and metals were about evenly mixed. Oils recorded slight improvement coincident with the better tone for that group on the big board. Transfers approximated 187,000 shares compared with 167,000 yesterday. Safety car heating soared some 9 points in a meagre turqover. Gains of above a point were shown by Newmont Mining, Sherwin-Williams, Sunshine Mining and Bunker Hill. & Sullivan. Recessions of fractions to around? point appeared in American Gas & Electric, American Cyanamid "B" Electric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker, Lake Shore, Techincolor and Pan-American Airways.

Meanwhile, what was taken as an indication of the gradual shifting of the direct relief burden for unemployables back to the state came from Harry L. Hopkins in the announcement that states and communities would contribute $563,775,000 to relief in 1935, an increase of $154,883,000 over the last year.

The relief administrator said the increase was the result of agreements worked out between the relief administration and the states. He added that the funds would be pooled until the $4,880,000,000 work-relief program got going and after that as a general rule state and local funds would be used to care for persons unable to work.

When the stranger delivered his warning con-cerning the brigands, Jerry Jones never dreamed that the ruthless horde was led by his mysterious employer, Boris Garetto. The scientist started to express his thanks, but the lion-killer leaped up-ward and vanished into the tree.

The astonished Tommy glanced aloft. "There was a regular guy," he said admiringly. He turned then to the trembling headman of the blacks, who had been awestruck by the combat. "Who was that bozo? Know him?" Tobanga nodded. "That, bwana, was Tarzan!"

Next day, the safari pushed on toward the Ghenzi mountains. . . . Tarzan continued his vain search for some trace of Boris Garetto's brigands. . . . And Garetto, secure in his mountain fastness, impatiently awaited the arrival of the geologist to explain the demons' light.

. . . But to Lady Beth Barclay, who had fallen into the hands of the strange Baalite tribe, the glow-ing pillar was an immediate peril rather than a vague mystery. She had seen it bring torture to a human sacrifice, and now she believed she was destined to a similar doom!

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am married to a man who has been unfaithful. Although I love him I feel about him as he would feel about me were I to betray him—in other words he is not and can never be the same to me. I can't ever have the same feeling about him that is necessary in marriage. I can go further and say that if he and this girl would come clean with me I would release him man let him marry her. But when I suggest this he says: "I don't want to marry her. You can't trust any weman." So there I am. He continues to carry on this affair that destroys our home life yet doesn't want to get a divorce and do the right thing by the girl. All three of us are in a mess and my busband, who holds the key to the situation, won't use it. What shall I do? Dear Miss Chatfield: I am mar-

The length of the knitted band of color would be determined by the elepth she made each color and the number of colors she used.

One thing she liked about this piece of knitting was its simplicity of making and the small space it took up in her knitting bay. She could rarry this knitting in one of the flat zipper closed knitting bay as and not feel that she was carrying a bundle. It was nothing but a smart small parcel.

The gifts were beginning to accumulate in Nancy's gift box. This was a wise move on her part for Christmas is only eight months away. Her fear was that she would give all the pretty things away long before the gift season arrived.

Someway gift occasions seemed to be recurring almost every week. But Nancy was ready for them.

It is mighty hard for a woman to be cold-blooded about a matter that lies close to her heart, but sometimes it is necessary. Robbed of the things that she set greatest store by she has to figure on making out with what is left. There is her home with her lares and penates, little household gods that she has collected throughout the years of her marriage. They fill a place in her life that she doesn't realize until faced with separation from them. There is the financial security which she may take for granted since she has always had it, but a divorced wife seldom collects alimony large enough to support her on the scale she has been accustomed to. And not always does she collect what the courts award her. She has had a substantial part in building up what estate her husband may have, then why should she relinquish her claim on what is rightfully hers?

In addition to these material considerations there is always hope that a philandering husband will come home chastened and repentant and that they may spend their last years in peace together, though the lost confidence in him may never be completely restored. So all in all, doesn't the outraged wife come out better in the long run if she sits steady in the boat while the waves rage and lets nature take its course? nature take its course?

Food Index Mounts To Near Record High

NEW YORK, April 10.—(UP)— The Dun & Bradstreet food index climbed to within striking distance of its depression peak this week, ad-vancing 5 cents to $2.74, compared with $2.69 in the preceding week and $2.10 in the corresponding week last year.

$2.10 in the corresponding week last year.

Gains were shown in prices of almost half of the commodities included in the index, declines being confined to coffee, cottonseed oil and sheep. At current levels, it is only 2 cents under the high for the past 4 1-2 years. Wholesale commodity prices showed firmness during the week, the daily index compiled for the United Press rising to 121.92.

World's Champion Player and Gr Card Analysat, Four Cards Required. Since there are 13 cards in every suit, unless a player holds at least four some one else is sure to hold four some one else is sure to hold more than he. Naturally there is no reason for naming a trump suit in which you will not be stronger than any other player. Thus no suit can be considered biddable unless it contains at least four cards. This reasoning leads further to the requirement that a four-card suit, to be biddable, must contain at least the jack and one higher honor—Q J x x or better.

In spite of these strict minimums for hiddable suits, there are certain missed.

Culbertson on

Contract

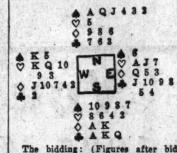

In spite of these strict minimums for biddable suits, there are certain cases in which it is proper to make an opening bid with a three-card minor suit. With three or more honor-tricks in the hand, no biddable suit and no 4.3-3-3 distribution with a four honor-trick minimum, it sometimes becomes necessary to open in a three-card minor.

There is little danger attached to this for even though the suit cannot be considered biddable, partner is very unlikely to raise to game in the minor suit unless be holds at least five trumps. Of course, no three-card minor should be bid unless it is headed by the ace, king or the queen-

INTELLIGENT DEDUCTION. The following deal shows how a player, who is too strong to pass and yet had no conventional opening bid, uses a three-card minor suit. It also shows how a slam contract was reached because intelligent deductions were made in the bidding. South, dealer.

North-South vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East 1&(1) 1♥ 1& 2♥ 4&(2) Pass 5&(3) Pass 6&(4) Pass Pass Pass

1—With four-plus honor-tricks and support for both majors South can-not pass. An unbiddable major suit is never opened so his bid is right.

South can see strong slam possi-bilities. West having bid hearts and East having raised them, North cannot hold more than op-heart, if that. South's raise to game is such a strong bid that North, with no outside strength, feels a alam is possible and a contract of five-odd is safe.

-South bids the slam because he knows no trick can be lost in clubs or diamonds and at most one trick in hearts. North must have the spade ace, because he could hardly have made a slam try without the ace. At worst, the slam should depend upon a finesse.

East opened the ace of hearts and continued hearts. From this point on there was little to the play of the hand. North trumped the second heart lead, entered dummy with a diamond and took the spade finesse. While he considered the possibility of East's having the singleton king, percentages favored a finesse for the king when two partners hold ten cards of a suit. West's over-call, lacking the ace of hearts, almost marked the king of spades.

Under this change, a bank with a $10,000 deposit would pay 1-8 of 1 per cent of the $10,000, a bank with a $5,000 deposit would likewise pay the same percentage.

But small-town and rural banks have deposits of much smaller average than some big city institutions. They have had to pay the insurance premium on virtually all their deposits. A big city bank with a $500,000 deposit paid the assessment only on the first $5,000 of that deposit; it now will pay the assessment on the whole $500,000.
